"The Dunbar Family of Barnwell County, SC" by Elizabeth Willis DeHuff

"Memoirs of Gorgia" Vol 2, 1895; Chapter 6 - The Bench Bar of Georgia pg 13

WILLIAM M. DUNBAR, postmaster, of Augusta, GA., was born in Barnwell district, S.C., April 6, 1846. His ancestors on both sides were soldiers in the armies of the colonies during the war of the revolution, and ancestors of both his paternal and maternal antecedents were colonial captions.

"Allen R. Dunbar, father of the gentleman whose name heads this sketch, was a native of South Carolina. He had five sons and a son-in-law in the Confederate armies during the War between the States. William M. Dunbar was reared and educated in the common schools of his native district. In January, 1863, he went to Augusta, Ga., to attend school, and the following May he enlisted as a private in Company A of Maj. George T. Jackson's battalion, and served until November, 1864, when he lost his right arm at the battle of Griswoldville, GA., and returned from the service. After his recovery Mr. Dunbar attended school at Athens, GA., six months, and then commenced to clerk in Augusta, for Winchester Graham, stock and bond brokerage, remaining two years. In November, 1866, he was married to Miss Rebecca C. (Hopkins), daughter of the late Thomas Hopkins, of Augusta, Ga., and went to his old home in Barnwell district, SC, and planted two years. Returning to Augusta, Mr. Dunbar became engaged as a purser of a steamboat running between Augusta and Savannah, retaining that position two years. He then worked a year for R. H. May & Co., of Augusta, and in 1872 he was elected treasurer of Richmond County, Ga., in which capacity he served ten years, when he resigned."

1906, elected Mayor of Augusta.

November 7, 1925, Augusta Chronicle: "JUDGE WILLIAM H. DUNBAR, former mayor of Augusta, and one of the city's most prominent citizens, died at the residence, 459 Greene Street, this morning at 1:40 o'clock after an illness of several days. The funeral will be held from the residence Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock, Rev. Rembert G. Smith, pastor of St. John's Church, will officiate and interment will be in the City Cemetery.

While Judge Dunbar had been in declining health for some time, it was not known that his condition was serious and the announcement of his death will be a great shock to his numerous friends, not only in Augusta, but throughout the state.

Judge Dunbar was one of the ablest men in Augusta during his years of activity. As mayor of Augusta he proved to be one of the most progressive citizens that ever occupied that office. During his term of office the city progressed rapidly. He was a staunch believer in the future of Augusta and while mayor paved the way for the further progress of the city.

Judge Dunbar was the son of Allen and Laura Dunbar. He was born on his father's plantation in Barnwell County, SC in 1846. As a boy he attended Bennett Springs Academy and later the Barnwell School. He came to Augusta in 1863 and entered the Jim Linn private school, only a short while later to enter the Confederate Army. He enlisted in Company A, Captain Thomas H. Holleyman, commander, Augusta Battalion, Major George T. Jackson, commander. He fought in some of the most important engagements of the war and lost an arm at the battle of Griswoldville, GA. His war record was without a blemish and he was considered a brave and resourceful soldier on every occasion. After the loss of his arm he entered the military school at Athens and was in this school when General Joseph E. Johnson surrendered.

Judge Dunbar returned to Augusta in 1865. He entered the business life of the city as clerk with the firm of Winchester-Graham Brokerage Co. In 1866 he was married to Miss Rebecca C. Hopkins of this city. For a number of years he was connected with various steamboat companies, operating out of Augusta, serving in the capacity of purser, mate, agent and manager. His first public office was in 1869 when he was appointed keeper of the city bridge at Fifth Street, at that time a toll bridge. He served in this capacity for one year, refusing reappointment to take a position with R.H. May &

Co. carriage works. The following year he was elected treasurer of Richmond County, serving the county faithfully for seven years. On leaving the office of county treasurer, Judge Dunbar engaged in the commission business, under the name of Dunbar, Clark & Co. Shortly afterwards he was elected Judge of recorder's court, serving in this capacity for five years. He again entered the commission business under the firm name of Dunbar & Co.

In 1893 Judge Dunbar was appointed postmaster at Augusta by President Grover Cleveland, which position he held until 1898. In 1898 the Clark Milling Company was organized, he being a member of the firm and its manager. In 1907 he was elected Mayor of Augusta, serving for three years, having just before being elected major served as a member of city council. In 1911 he was elected postmaster of the House of Representatives, Washington, DC. In 1915 he was again elected to this position, and remained in that capacity until 1919. He then returned to Augusta where he retired from all activities. In 1913 Judge Dunbar was married to Mrs. Virginia T. Bennett of Virginia.

Judge Dunbar was a member of St. John's Church, being one of its oldest members. He was an Odd Fellow, member of Washington Lodge, and the Augusta Lodge, B.P.O.E.

Judge Dunbar is survived by his wife, Mrs. Virginia T. Dunbar; two sons: Clemons E. Dunbar of New York, and Frank M. Dunbar, Albany, NY; four grandchildren: Thomas Hopkins, Frank Dunbar, Clemons Dunbar, Jr., Eleanor Eve Dunbar."

November 8, 1925: Augusta Chronicle: "The death of Judge W.M. Dunbar removes another of the gallant men who wore the uniform of grey and a man whose career as a soldier and a citizen was without a blemish. Judge Dunbar had lost an arm in one of the sanguinary encounters of the Civil War and throughout that great conflict there was not a soldier who fought more gallantly. In pursuits of peace Judge Dunbar was signally honored and as postmaster of Augusta, as mayor of Augusta and postmaster of the National House of Representatives, Judge Dunbar made able and splendid officials. As the mayor of Augusta at the time of the flood in 1908, Judge Dunbar did much to help the work of rehabilitation preparatory to the issuance of bonds to build the levee which has been one of the reasons for Augusta's tremendous advancement, for the security from flood waters has meant an ever increasing value to Augusta real estate. Judge Dunbar built the fire department headquarters on the 1200 block of Broad Street and did much toward the motorization of the department, which is now complete. Judge Dunbar's home people honored him with election to the highest office with their gift, and he was given national honors when named postmaster of the House of Representatives. He was an ardent and lifelong Democrat, and was on terms of intimacy with the leading Democrats of the country. Personally, Judge Dunbar was a lovable, kindly gentleman of the old fashioned type. He was modest and unassuming in his manners and easily made friends, and the conspicuous honor which he held during his long and useful career attested his personality and his ability to make and hold friendship. The death of Judge Dunbar causes the thin grey line to become thinner, and one by one the old heroes are quietly dropping out. The Memorial Day parades were always participated in by Judge Dunbar, whose interest in his comrades of the Sixties was displayed at every opportunity. A good man and true has gone to his reward; another brave soldier has gone to join Robert E. Lee and Stonewall Jackson." Active pallbearers at his funeral were J.C. Acton, Paul H. Dunbar, Dr. E.E. Murphey, W.J. Hollingsworth, Dr. George Patrick, and W.A. Johnston. The only honorary pallbearer was Alfred Smith, lifelong friend and comrade, who served with Judge Dunbar during the war, and who was at his side when he received the wound in his arm that caused its removal.

Frank married Clara Eugenia EVE, daughter of Dr. Philip H. EVE, on 6 Apr 1904 in Augusta, Ga. Clara died 15 May 1908 in Augusta, Richmond County, GA and was buried 16 May 1908 in Magnolia Cemetery- Augusta, GA.

April 7, 1904, Augusta Chronicle: "MARRIAGE OF MISS EVE AND MR. DUNBAR YESTERDAY. At half past one o'clock yesterday, at the home of Mrs. M.A. Roundtree, Miss Clara Eve and Mr. Frank Dunbar were united in the bonds of holy matrimony by the Rev. Sparks Melton. The marriage, though a very quiet one, owing to the mourning of the bride, was one of rare beauty and sweetness. The bride, a radiant blonde of pale Titian coloring, wore an exquisite gown of white voile tucked in tiny tucks and trimmed in simple and charming effect with fan-shaped plisses was repeated upon the corsage to form the effect of a berthe appearing between inset medallions of fagotting and tucks. She carried in her hand a bouquet of beautiful bride's roses and the veil of tulle which enveloped her as a softening and becoming mist was simply and charmingly caught upon her red gold hair with a single rose. An altar of swaying palms, white lilies, and boughs of dazzling white dogwood, gleaming with candles borne upon tall majestic candle sticks, was formed in the front drawing room before the windows. The little wedding procession advanced through the back drawing room and gathered for the altar where the Rev. Sparks Melton pronounced the impressive marriage service. As the wedding party were about to enter the back room Master Harold Roundtree and Master Campbell Hopkins precede the party and opened a pathway between the guests, each unwinding as they passed a broad satin ribbon which formed a boundary to the space given the wedding party. Following Master Roundtree and Master Hopkins were Master Milledge and Master Tracey Matthewson; then came Miss Mattie Beall Panknin and Miss Milledge Wilson, charmingly dressed in dainty gowns of white chiffon muslin with yokes and berthes of white lace strips forming wheel shaped designs and arranged with a scroll effect of fagotting and feather stitching. Each maid carried a bouquet of fragrant white carnations. Following the maids were the groomsmen, Mr. Robert Rood and Mr. Righton Robertson, and preceding the bride, who entered the room and advanced to the altar escorted by her father, Dr. Phillip Eve, was the maid of honor, Miss Lily Roundtree, who wore a gown of lustrous liberty silk inset with medallions of cream lace elaborately fagotted and feather stitched. Miss Roundtree carried white roses. Mr. Frank Dunbar was attended by his brother, Mr. Clement Dunbar, who acted as best man. The bridal party and near relatives of the bride were entertained after the ceremony with a wedding luncheon. The ring in the bridesmaid's cakes fell to Miss Lily Roundtree and the scarf pin in the cakes for the groomsmen fell to Mr. Robert Rood. The bride changed her wedding gown for a smart traveling suit of black taffeta and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dunbar left on the northern train for a trip to Washington and New York. After their return home Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dunbar will make their home with Mr. and Mrs. William Dunbar, the parents of the groom."

Augusta Chronicle, May 16, 1908: "FUNERAL NOTICE, The friends and acquaintances of Mr. and MRS. F. M. DUNBAR, Mr. W. M. Dunbar, and Dr. P. H. EVE, are invited to attend the funeral of MRS. F. M. DUNBAR, today (Saturday, 16th(, at 4:30 pm from their residence, 302 Fourth Street."

"THE VERY SAD DEATH OF MRS. CLARA DUNBAR. Lovable Young Woman Passes Away-Funeral Today. The many friends of Mrs. Clara Eve Dunbar were shocked to learn of her death, which occurred yesterday at 12 noon. Mrs. Dunbar died at the City Hospital, where she had been under treatment for the past 3 weeks. She was thought to be improving, but yesterday her friends were made very anxious by the news of a sudden relapse, and the news of her death which followed, cast a gloom over the community in which she was loved so much. Her death is doubly sad on account of her youth.

"Mrs. Dunbar was the wife of Mr. Frank M. Dunbar, who led her to the altar as his bride, only a few years ago. The devoted husband has the sympathy of many worrowing friends, in his sad hour of bereavement. The deceased was the daughter of Dr. P. H. Eve, of Beach Island, and is survived by her father and one brother, Mr. William Eve.

"The Funeral will be held this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock, at the corner of Elbert and Ellis Streets. The services will be conducted by Rev. Fletcher Walton and Dr. Richard Wilkinson. The pallbearers are: Messrs R.W. Rood, T.H. Stafford, John W. Walker, Paul H. Dunbar, Galphin Hankinson and Ralph B. Willis."

From what I found online about pellagra, it is an acquired disease, caused by a deficiency of niacin: Pellagra, the classic niacin deficiency disease, is characterized by bilateral dermatitis in sun exposed areas, glossitis, diarrhea, and dementia. Often associated with a largely cereal diet such as maize or sorghum, the disease is now rarely seen in industrialized countries but still appears in India, China, and Africa. Pellagra is often associated with other micronutrient deficiencies and may also develop in cases of disturbed tryptophan metabolism (carcinoid syndrome, Hartnup's).

Augusta Chronicle, September 23, 1900: BANQUET IN HONOR OF JNO. W. DUNBAR, GIVEN BY HIS FRIENDS IN BEECH ISLAND. September 22nd - Mr. John W. Dunbar was tendered by his friends a banquet at the palatial home of Mr. C. B. LAMAR last Friday evening, on Beech Island.

"A committee procured the service of the Excelsior Cornet Band, of Augusta, forming a line, marched to the home of Mr. Dunbar and escorted him to the home of Mr. C. B. Lamar, while the night was lighted with a beautiful display of fireworks. She was escorted to the rostrum, and Mr. B. D. Lamar, in a few well chosen remarks, presented to the large concourse of people Mr. Dunbar, whose speech was the happiest of his life. Mr. Dunbar made quite a remarkable race for clerk of court, and has added many laurels to his crown.

"After the speaking the house was thrown open and the young people indulged in dancing until the wee-small hours of morn. The dance was well matronized by Mrs. C. B. Lamar and Mrs. Henry Melkemham. There were present many distinguished guests, not only from Aiken County, but from many adjoining counties.

"After the dance several young ladies indulged in the "cake walk" with the newly elected clerk, and were highly enjoyed by all present. Refreshments were served during the evening. Beech Island will long be remembered for its hospitality, being one of the grandest occasions the hospitable people of this thriving little place has ever witnessed. The sweet signing of Mrs. Kate Hammond was highly enjoyed.

"The committee, consisting of Mrs. C. B. Lamar and Harry Melkemham deserve much credit for the successful manner in which they carried out the program. During the evening the band furnished delightful music, which reflected much credit upon Prof. Wynn for their careful training.

"During the display of fireworks here last Friday evening the horse of Mr. B. R. Dunbar became frightened and ran over Mr. J. D. Everett, inflicting injuries which were very painful, but not fatal."

Augusta Chronicle, November 16, 1923: "110 ACRES BRING $9,000 AT PRIVATE SALE. Aiken, SC., Nov. 15 - As a measure of what farm land in Aiken section is bringing on the market, the sale of the John W. Dunbar place near this city, recorded today, is a fair example. The farm containing 110 acres, situated three miles from the courthouse, with land that is in part rolling, brought $9,000 at private sale, the buyer being Judson Brodie of Earle, SC. Only a few years back land in this section went a-begging for a buyer at $10 to $15 per acre, but today under the intensive system of farming it is considered at the figures mentioned above."

Title: On the Savannah and the Peedee, 1822-1860: A Comparative Study of Material Conditions for Slaves on the Chicora Wood Rice Plantation of Robert F.W. Allston and the Silver Bluff Cotton Plantation of James H. Hammond

Abstract: This study explores the material conditions for slaves on two South Carolina plantations: the Chicora Wood rice plantation of Robert F.W. Allston and the Silver Bluff cotton plantation of James H. Hammond. Several historians have offered "improved" material conditions as a reason for the decline in overt black resistance in period in the period before the Civil War. The author of this study identified several indexes to examine the material conditions for slaves on these plantation: clothing, diet, food, housing, medical care and leisure time.

The data for this study was gleaned, for the most part, from the plantation papers of Robert F.W. Allston and James H. Hammond. The information revealed in these sources was analyzed along with information on material conditions for slaves as presented by Herbert Aptheker, John Blassingame, Stanley Elkins, Robert W. Fogel and Stanley L. Engerman, Eugene D. Genovese and U.B. Phillips.

Slavery in the colony that was later to become the state of South Carolina was a major force from the days of its founding. Primarily a system of forced labor, it was also a police system. The police system was deemed necessary by slaveholders for many reasons, specifically because blacks constituted a majority of the population in South Carolina throughout the age of plantation slavery. The two planters chosen for this study were both affluent members of the planting gentry with large slaveholdings and active in the political life of the state. The two plantations, one rice and one cotton, were chosen to determine to what degree, if any, the staple crop of a plantation influenced the treatment of the slaves who resided there.

The rice plantation of Robert F.W. Allston was located in the rice planting district of South Carolina. Allston's slaves were assigned work in rice cultivation under the task system of labor. The material conditions of slaves on plantations with absentee owners like Allston suffered from discrepancies between the directives of the planter and the actual practice as performed by the overseer. James H. Hammond, basically a first generation South Carolinian, planted cotton on the Savannah River in Barnwell District. Daily cotton plantation activities under the gang system of labor are elucidated in a plantation manual, "Views on Agriculture", written by J.H. Hammond's son, EDWARD SPANN HAMMOND.

The author has found little evidence in the plantation journals, account books and diaries of Robert F.W. Allston and James H. Hammond to suggest that the material conditions of their bondsmen were improving on the eve the Civil War. Plantation slavery was not a static institution and cannot be viewed as such. Both of the plantation manuals used extensively in this study were written near the end of the period covered. Fragmentary information that was gleaned from earlier journals and account books would not substantiate a claim of major improvements. Minor improvements that might have occurred can be attributed to the natural order of any era over time and not to any conscious efforts of the planters.

"Marked by a beautiful simplicity and the absence of all ostentation was the marriage of Miss Lucile Ashley and Mr. William Ernest McGhee, which was solemnized yesterday afternoon at five o'clock at the First Christian Church. Many palms, banked within the chancel rail, and innumerable candles formed the sole decoration in the church, which was filled with friends. As the organist began the wedding march from Lohengrin, Mrs. Duncan Jones, the matron of honor, entered and immediately following came the bride on the arm of her father. She wore a very handsome and becoming Directoire suit of broadcloth in the new Catawba shade, the coat being elaborately braided and embroidered. The beautiful wide brimmed hat which completed the costume was a wonderful blending of the same color with soft old rose, and three magnificent plumes massed at the right side were of a still deeper tone. Long streamers of old rose ribbons knotted directoire fashion finished the lovely creation. The bride's bouquet was of giant white chrysanthemums the slender stems caught with tulle.

"Mrs. Jones was costumed in white and wore a large black and white hat weighted with plumes. She carried white chrysanthemums also.

The church was beautifully decorated. For some time before the ceremony Wylly's band of Augusta played appropriate selections, while the guests were arriving, and by 8 o'clock the church presented a brilliant appearance with its many silvery lights shining down upon the palm-decked chancel and a large assembly of friends of the bride and groom and the ladies in their exquisite evening toilets.
